A report dated February 24, 1945, entitled "Political Developments in Sweden" by O. Arthur Gran, otherwise unidentified, mentioned a Karl Hammarskjold as a member of the Conservative Party which from the standpoint of history is the oldest party of Sweden. From 1906 to 1911, this Party was largely responsible for universal and equal suffrage reform, together with the democratized nation of the communal scale of vote and proportional voting for both chambers. According to the report, it was a Conservative Ministry headed by Karl Hammarskjold that guided Sweden's neutrality in World War I even though the Party did not have a majority in the second chamber. The Conservatives have always advocated strong national defense which through the years has been in contrast to the Social Democratic Policy. In all probability this individual is the father of Dag Hammarskjold. (109-12-267-8)

Dear Sir:

May we, Latvian Americans, take the liberty and give you a tiny tip? Every dog has his day. Every picture tells a story.

The picture in today's NY Times shows you in the act of shaking the hand of a mad dog, Latvia's public enemy #1, a vicious man.

It seems that you, a Swede, stand a little too close to the mad dog, to judge from the picture in the NY Times.

He, the mad dog, Latvia's public enemy #1, a vicious man, has been living far too long on borrowed time. For this the decent world must thank the Latvians who can afford to take the time to get even.

Petlura, a vicious anti Semite, was executed by a Jew in Paris. Just like Petlura, a soviet swine, guilty of murder, was executed in Switzerland as he, the soviet swine, slobbered food in a restaurant.

The vicious man, whose hand you are so heartily shaking, is a criminal of the worst type, Vishinsky, the arch villain, guilty of the mass murder of some 300,000 Latvians, liquidated by genocidal methods.

This is a hideous crime in itself.

Yet, you, as seen from the picture, are shaking hands with the monster, the criminal, as though you were congratulating him, the monster of evil, congratulating him for the undeniable fact that, today, million Latvians are living in the shadow of death.

Come to your senses, Swede!

Every dog has his day. Dillinger, a public enemy #1, was shot down on sight like a mad dog. 17 men of the F.B.I., directed by Hoover the director, executed Dillinger in broad daylight on a street in Chicago, and riddled with bullets the bandit whose straw hat, riddled by bullets, hangs today in the F B I, a memento mori.

Yet, Dillinger, compared with the mad dog, with whom you are seen in the act shaking hands, in friendly mood, this Dillinger was only a small time banit. Whereas, that bastard, the degenerate bourgeois or, to be correct, the degenerate and /OR CRIMINAL depraved, has the blood of the Latvians by the thousands, dripping from his bloody hand. Some 70 Latvian children, kidnapped by the Russian of Vishinsky type, were locked up in two cattle cars and, shunted aside by the Vishinsky, were left without care or food or without water to drink till these Latvian children died of thirst and were found, biting their fingers in the agony of death, all thanks to such criminal types as Vishinsky. So, please do try, in the future, to keep away from that sonste of evil, the mad dog, who, come a day, will go the way of Stalin, Stal the ayolotsch, the mad dog whom a dozen doctors could not keep alive.

Respectfully yours, veteran seaf of World War I and II, and master of sea steam and water,

the United Nations, and a different procedure was adopted in the conduct of certain negotiations between the United Nations and the National Headquarters, as a means of July 14, 1949, the responsiveness of the Loyalty Review Board and the Security Board to the letter for loyalty review of all employees of the American employees of the United Nations in the organization building, interviews by our Agents in the building and conducted by the Agents and supervisors of the employees for the purpose of interviews. Former Secretary Hinckley, I would like to agree to these measures.

The present Secretary-General, Dag Hammarskjold, has now proposed, in a letter to the United States Mission to the United Nations, that these "special arrangements", as he calls them, be terminated. A photocopy of his letter of November 1953, embodying his desires, has been furnished to the Bureau by Special Assistant to the Attorney General Thomas J. Donegan. Mr. Donegan has asked for our views concerning it.

Mr. Hornarskjold's letter (Photostat, which is attached) assumes that the "special arrangements" consist of "fingerprinting, etc." Actually, the "special arrangements" contemplated considerably more, such as (1) the United Nations confirming information on the employees' loyalty forms, by comparison with their personnel files, (2) agents of the FBI conducting interviews of United Nations personnel on the United Nations premises, (3) United Nations officials arranging interviews with foreigners employed by the organization and (4) the United Nations handling press inquiries resulting from the program.

Mr. Hammarskjold's letter also speaks of the "operation", i.e., the United Nations loyalty investigations, "being concluded". Actually we have been continuing responsibility to investigate Americans who are internationally recruited and of those on whom the Civil Service Commission turns up derogatory information. Therefore, although investigations on most of the current American employees have been completed, it cannot be said that the operation is concluded, as there will undoubtedly be many new persons employed by the United Nations in the future.

Hammarskjold, Chou in 2d Session

By Ralph Chapman

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.,
 Jan. 7.—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold and Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai held a second meeting in Peking today and scheduled a third for 3 p. m. tomorrow, Peking time (2 a. m. Saturday, New York time). Today's discussion of the case of the eleven American airmen jailed by the Chinese Reds as spies and of other still-unrepatriated U. N. military personnel captured in the Korean War. Before leaving here Dec. 30, lasted for three hours and forty-five minutes.

A cable received here today from Mr. Hammarskjold was just as uncommunicative concerning the nature of the discussion as was that of yesterday telling of the first meeting. It is apparent that the two sides have agreed that there shall be no substantive announcement until a decision has been reached or until the talks are broken off indefinitely.

Mr. Hammarskjold made clear his hope that such secrecy would prevail because of the delicacy of his mission.

Reports that the Secretary-General is preparing to leave Peking within the next day or two were discounted by sources close to the U. N. delegations most directly interested. It is generally believed that his talks with Mr. Chou will continue until the middle of next week. The same sources admitted, however, that he has not communicated with individual governments since his departure.

That Mr. Hammarskjold has won a preliminary victory became evident today with the timing of the release of the scant news of the meeting. The text of his cable was made available to reporters at U.N. headquarters at 9:30 a.m. It was not until that exact moment (10:30 p.m., Peking time) that the Peking radio went on the air with the same announcement. Since today's session lasted from 2 a.m. to 5:45 a.m. New York time, this meant that the Chinese Reds held up their own broadcast for three and three-quarter hours so that the communique might be released simultaneously here.

One immediate result of this arrangement was that some news agencies in Tokyo and Hong Kong jumped to the conclusion that the Chinese had clamped a censorship lid on the story. Unaware that Mr. Hammarskjold had gone to Peking with such a news plan in mind, they sent stories concerning a "blackout" and a drawing of the "bamboo curtain" when their monitoring of the Peking radio brought no news of the talks. The stories were withdrawn when the communique went on the air.

As a matter of fact, the Chinese Reds seem to be doing everything possible to facilitate world dissemination of whatever news comes out of the talks. Mr. Hammarskjold's cable was received here today less than two hours after it was filed in Peking.

On the other hand, by one of the peculiar twists of Communist policy, every one else seems to know more about what is going on in Peking than the Chinese people themselves.

They know that Mr. Hammarskjold and his party are there, but they do not appear to have been told that the reason for the visit is to seek the release of a group of Americans branded as "spies."

In another development today, the Indian delegation here took cognizance of news stories from New Delhi to the effect that Mr. Hammarskjold had been coolly received when he stopped there en route to Peking. A statement circulated to U.N. correspondents quoted him as saying that he would always remember his short visit to India "for the great experience that it has been and for the hospitality."

"He had been in Delhi as a state guest of the Indian government," the statement said, "and with his party had stayed at the President's House, an honor extended only to the most distinguished guests."

Elimination of Fear Urged By U.N. Chief In Williamsburg

Pessimistic Overtones Voiced in Address for Independence Rites
28 Official Guests

Threatening Forces of 180 Years Ago Still Here, Speaker Says

By Robert C. Smith
Virginian-Pilot Staff Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, May 15 — United Nations "Peacemaker" Dag Hammarskjold, recently returned from a vital Middle East mission, today called for elimination of a gathering, world-wide fear which could precipitate open conflict.

In a speech filled with numerous warnings, and overtones of pessimism regarding human affairs, the United Nations secretary-general contrasted the world situation today with that which existed when the Virginia Declaration of Rights was drafted in 1776.

After conceding that recognition of human rights has spread in the 180 years since the signing of the history-making Virginia document celebrated here today, he went on to say that the forces against which these rights must be defended are no less strong or complicated than before.

"On the contrary, the complications have grown in manifold ways," he said. "... What happened in the forties may happen again. And the complications we are meeting in the fifties will still in the sunny yard of this historic Capitol, he touched only briefly on his recent conferences with Israel and Arab nation leaders. He did say that the armistice agreements establish the right of each participant "to its security and freedom from fear of attack."

Speaking on Capitol Grounds

The dapper, blond Swede, who carries his 50 years sprucely, was introduced by Kenneth Chorley, president of Colonial Williamsburg. Ambassadors of 28 nations were among the guests. Virginia's Gov. Thomas B. Stanley spoke briefly at the beginning of the ceremonies, and Chorley lauded the city where the declaration was drafted as a place where men can come "to refresh their spirits, renew their courage, rediscover their faith, and recall the price men have always been willing to pay for liberty and justice."

Hammarskjold strode unsmiling to the lectern after being introduced and said that the Virginia Declaration, which served as a model for the Bill of Rights, was the first in a series leading up to the Universal Declaration proclaimed in 1948 by the United Nations' General Assembly.

Later, after touching on his mission to the Middle East, he indicated that war and the fear of war are in the headlines of the newspapers of the world "because man fears man and nation nation." He asked: "Can there be a greater challenge for us to work for such a recognition of the dignity of man as would eliminate the fear which is eating our world like a cancer?"

Concerning the dangers of this fear, he said:

"We all know how, when moved by fear, people may act against what others see as their own best interest. . . . We have seen how, when influenced by such actions, the course of events may take on aspects of inexorable fatality up to the point where, out of sheer weariness, no resistance to the gravitation into open conflict any longer seems possible."

He concluded by stating that his views did not represent an application of abstract ethical principles. "I state conclusions from some very concrete recent experiences," he said.

"It is when we all play safe that we create a world of the utmost insecurity. It is when we all play safe that fatality will lead to our doom. It is 'in the dark shade of courage' (a quotation from a work by American expatriate poet Ezra Pound) alone, that the spell can be broken."

The ambassadors—including the Soviet's George Zarubin—and other guests stood at the beginning of the ceremonies as the United States Continental Army Command Band, from Fort Monroe, played the Swedish national anthem.

Later in the ceremonies, Chorley remarked that the American national anthem had been omitted inadvertently and would be played at the end.

Dr. Richard P. McCormick, professor of history at Rutgers University, read the Virginia Declaration of Rights, drafted by George Mason, after Chorley's talk.

Flags of the 28 nations represented fluttered from a position overhanging the large guest platform placed in the Capitol yard for the occasion. Vocal music was provided by the Hampton Institute Choir.

Several hundred guests were assembled in the yard proper on chairs, while others stood or sat behind the semicircle of concrete wall separating the yard from the green.

Each year Colonial Williamsburg commemorates the prelude to Independence period—May 15 through July 4, 1776—with a speaker and ceremonies. The date of the drafting of the Virginia Declaration was chosen for special emphasis this year. In 1953 President Eisenhower spoke from the Colonial State Capitol. In 1954, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles spoke. Last year the speaker was Dr. Grayson L. Kirk.

As Hammarskjold Speaks

Profile of a 'Peacemaker'

"I state conclusions from some very concrete recent experiences."

So said U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold at Colonial Williamsburg yesterday.

The Virginia Declaration In the World Context

Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations, leading in the celebration in Williamsburg of the 180th anniversary of the Virginia Convention of 1776, related that historic year to today by pointing out that the Virginia Declaration of Rights, which came on June 12, 1776, was the original forerunner of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights proclaimed by the U. N. General Assembly in 1948.

To bring the analogy more precisely to a new and important point, Mr. Hammarskjold, just back from the Middle East with the new cease-fire agreements, pointed out further that—

In their first articles those armistice agreements establish the right of each party "to its security and freedom from fear of attack." In a political contest of the utmost significance, this clause recognizes a human right which, in a broad sense, may be said to sum up the whole philosophy of human rights.

This is to demonstrate afresh the vitality of the Virginia Declaration which Colonial Williamsburg celebrated yesterday in a unique and impressive manner. Mr. Hammarskjold has no illusions about the depth and difficulty of the problems confronting the United Nations. He felt it necessary to say that "what happened in the '40's may happen again, and the complications we are meeting in the '50's will still be there in the '60's." Yet he could also say that the armistice agreements give Israel and her Arab neighbors the mutual right to "free development of individual and national life."

These were significant expressions in significant setting and circumstances. Mr. Hammarskjold led nearly 30 ambassadors or other representatives of foreign nations to Williamsburg for this celebration of the formal expressions of fundamental ideas about human rights. The document that George Mason drew up for the action of the Virginia Convention was the direct forerunner to the ultimate Bill of Rights—the first 10 amendments—of the United States Constitution. It inspired comparable declarations of human rights in the constitutions of many other countries before it led to the action of the United Nations which Mr. Hammarskjold pointed out.

All this ran through the events in Williamsburg. Not only the formal reading of the Virginia Declaration but virtually everything that was said there dealt with freedom and liberty and human rights. The words rang like bells. The ideas permeated all analysis and interpretation and thinking. The themes repeated themselves time after time. The whole spirit of the occasion reflected these profound convictions—these stars that guide American life and the lives of many other nations. If such new emphasis in May of 1956 was appropriate for Americans, Americans can hope that it may have new meaning for all representatives of foreign nations that participated in this celebration.

The Stature of HammarSKjold

By Marquis Childs

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—With the news roaring with hurricane force from every quarter—the political debate, a new upheaval in the Congo, a man in space or not in space—it is a measure of this international civil servant that he should nevertheless still stand well to the center of the crowded stage. From a small neutral country where he had an expert status and a relatively unimportant position in his government, Dag HammarSKjold has become the symbol of decency and reason and the hope that world order may yet evolve out of revolution and chaos.

He has said again, as so often before, that it is not the man who is at issue in this bitter quarrel but the office of Secretary General—the independent, impartial, objective director of the United Nations executive branch. The very fact of his success as an independent, impartial, objective servant of the Security Council has made him the target of the Soviet Union.

HammarSKjold, as he would be the first to acknowledge, could not conceivably resolve the intrigues of East and West in the Congo. Those intrigues, however they may be glossed with the color of good intention, go to the roots of power over the great mineral wealth of Katanga Province and the strategic position that the government finally dominating Central Africa will occupy.

BUT HE could, and this is what he has done, deny the use of the U. N. force to either side. He has undertaken to enforce a standstill until the conflict is somehow resolved. It must never be forgotten that he interposed the U. N. force at a moment when bloody civil and tribal warfare was about to spread with wild incitement from the inflammable Patrice Lumumba and with the Belgians recklessly determined to hold actual, if not nominal, control over their wealth in Katanga.

And that tribal-civil war could rapidly have become an international conflict with East and West each stoking the fires with their own military. In this dangerous and difficult endeavor "success" for the U. N. was bound to be qualified. A checkmate would bring the hostility of one certainly and in all probability both of the parties to this subterranean struggle.

During a wartime conference in Allies render a question about the Pope and the position of the Vatican came up and Stalin is said to have demanded to know how many divisions the Pope had. He expressed his general disregard for everything but sheer force. HammarSKjold has no divisions at his disposal but he has a power and a prestige that are immeasurable.

Informed opinion here is that he will survive the attack directed at him by Premier Khrushchev. There is, of course, an unhappy precedent in the way in which the Communist bloc succeeded in driving out his predecessor, Trygve Lie. They did this by calculatedly undercutting him in every possible way.

But HammarSKjold has more stature and more tenacity than Lie and the lines this time are more clearly drawn. He will not surrender. He has the confidence of most of the Asian and African nations as well as the Western powers. If he is destroyed it is hardly too much to say that the U. N. itself will have been dealt a crippling blow.

HIS IS far from an enviable position. He must surely be one of the most lonely of men. His whole life is the U. N. and he gives to it virtually every waking moment of his time. While the present attack is more virulent than most, he has been calumniated by the extreme right, opposed not so much to HammarSKjold himself as to the Secretary General as a symbol of the effectiveness of the U. N.—by the extreme right here in America. Interestingly enough, it is for this same reason that Moscow has set out to destroy him.

He has demonstrated in one situation after another that he can be independent, impartial and objective. For the implacable partisans of either—or, black or white, this is in itself a crime and he must be made to pay for it.

Of late the Eisenhower Administration has rested heavily on its love for the U. N. But it has stopped short of the really far-reaching support that could move it forward to a new dimension. And while some effort is being made to rally support for HammarSKjold and the office of Secretary General, which the Soviets would wipe out, this is neither very vigorous or impassioned. Secretary of State Herter is returning to Washington at a time when his influence might be important with foreign ministers and heads of state.

Asks Again For Ouster Of Secretary

b7c

By EARL H. VOSS
Star Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Soviet Premier Khrushchev, in another bellicose General Assembly speech, today threatened to disregard U. N. decisions unless Communist and neutralist nations are given a bigger voice in the world body's operations.

He coupled the threat with a demand that Secretary General

Dag Hammarskjold resign, declaring that "we do not . . . and cannot trust him."

And he asserted that it would be "naive" to expect an agreement on disarmament to come out of any Eisenhower-Khrushchev meeting, such as is being sought by neutral powers. A resolution recommending such a Big Two conference is before the General Assembly.

Mr. Khrushchev, in another attack on President Eisenhower, said the President "defends 'what is old, rotten, and already collapsing.'

"No Smoke From Chimney"

"Some say that Khrushchev and Eisenhower should be locked in a room and kept there until they reach an agreement on disarmament, but this, of course, is naive," he said.

"We may sit together indefinitely, but if no desire to come to agreement is evinced by the President, and particularly by those quarters that back him, no smoke will come from the chimney as is the tradition when a Pope is elected."

President Eisenhower, in a letter to leaders of Ghana, Indonesia, India, the United Arab Republic and Yugoslavia yesterday, did not hide his reluctance to meet with Premier Khrushchev "as a mere gesture" which might mislead the world.

The Soviet Premier did not go so far in his speech as some had expected, for instance, to threaten withdrawal of the Soviet bloc from the United Nations. On the contrary he indicated the Soviet Union would continue to work to reform the United Nations by increasing the voice of neutralist and Communist states.

Threatening Passage

This was the passage in his prepared text with which Premier Khrushchev threatened to disregard U. N. decisions:

"If the machinery which is called upon to solve the major international issues with due regard to the interests of all states, if this U. N. machinery — the Security Council and the Secretariat — resolve these questions to the detriment of the Socialist and neutralist states, then, naturally, these countries will not recognize such decisions and will rely on their own strength to defend the interests of their states, the interests of peace."

It is not the Soviet Union which is trying to destroy the United Nations, he said. It is the "imperialist powers" which, "if they persist in fol-

During their meeting with the United Nations in a conference, Disarmament would be impossible without a three-man secretariat representing Western, Communist and neutralist nations, he said.

International armed forces to keep the peace, he declared, must be directed by the three blocs, not by a single secretary general.

He rejected as inadequate the proposal of some that Mr. Hammarskjold be replaced by another single person.

Charges Anti-Red Bias

Referring to Mr. Hammarskjold, Mr. Khrushchev said: "If he himself does not muster up enough courage to resign, so to say, in a chivalrous manner, then we shall draw up the necessary conclusions from the obtaining situation."

"It is not proper for a man who has flouted elementary justice to hold such an important post as that of secretary general..."

"Mr. Hammarskjold has always been biased with regard to the Socialist countries, he has always upheld the interests of the United States and other countries of monopoly capital. The events in the Congo, where he played a really deplorable role, were but the last drop that filled the cup of patience to the overflowing."

Secretary to Reply

Secretary General Hammarskjold was to speak later this afternoon, presumably exercising his right of reply to Mr. Khrushchev's renewed attack on him.

Mr. Khrushchev stuck to his prepared text with little animation. To onlookers he seemed a different man from the one who waved clenched fists on the podium Saturday in a hard-swinging attack on the United States.

Young King Hussein of Jordan followed the Soviet Premier to the rostrum to read a statement of ringing endorsement for the secretary general.

The Soviet Premier, however, along with Foreign Minister Andre Gromyko, already had left the Assembly hall.

Freedom Choice Seen

In his attack on communism and the Soviet Union, King Hussein declared:

"On almost every vital issue nations are offered a choice, becoming part of the Soviet empire subservient to the dictates of Moscow, or to remain free nations."

"It is a choice and it is for every nation to decide."

He said his Arab kingdom had made its choice, "and I am here to reaffirm our red com-munism."

To resounding applause, he added: "Communism will not survive in the Arab world. I believe that Arab nationalism is too deep rooted to ever be supplanted by a system that denies our ideals."

"In the great struggle between communism and freedom there can be no neutrality."

Attack on UAR

As to relations with the United Arab Republic, King Hussein declared: "The aim of our sister Arab state appears to be our destruction."

President Nasser was not in the Assembly Hall, but UAR Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi entered in time to hear the attack on his country.

"The policy of the Soviets is to split friends," King Hussein asserted. "The United Arab Republic is seeking to dominate our part of the world. There is a significant parallel in these two aspirations."

British Prime Minister Macmillan and Secretary of State Herter, who had heard the new Khrushchev threat, remained to hear Prime Minister Nehru of India.

The Soviet leader had asked to be the first speaker this morning under the "right of reply" rule, as the Assembly general debate enters its third week.

High Class Shown By Hammarskjold

By ANDREW TULLY,
Scripps-Hosmer Newspapers

Even in international politics, which is not famous for helping old ladies across the street, it is sometimes possible to encounter class—as a Swede named Dag Hammarskjold keeps proving.

For the second time in two weeks, the United Nations Secretary-General spoke up against the b a r r o o m brawling of Nikita Khrushchev, but it was typical of Mr. Hammarskjold that his words were spoken in defense not of himself but of the United Nations.

Earlier, Khrushchev had sought to reduce the U.N. to the level of a grade school class meeting; Mr. Hammarskjold reminded the delegates they were big boys now and could even behave as gentlemen.

In a dogged, businesslike speech, Khrushchev has spent most of the morning repeating his demand that Mr. Hammarskjold resign. "We do not trust Mr. Hammarskjold and cannot trust him," he said. Then, with patronizing nastiness, "If he himself does not muster up enough courage to resign . . . then we shall draw the necessary conclusions . . ."

Thus described as a fraud and a probable coward, Dag Hammarskjold strolled calmly to the lectern, sat down and addressed his calm—and icily proper—reply to the world.

A gentleman can call a man a liar with elegance. Mr. Hammarskjold reminded the General Assembly, "Facts are facts" and they were there for whoever cared for truth. "Those who invoke history will certainly be heard by history. They will have to accept its verdict as it will be pronounced on the basis of the facts."

He saw no reason to defend himself, but he reminded the delegates coldly that "you, all of you, are the judges."

Khrushchev's statement he noted blandly, "seems to indicate the Soviet Union finds it impossible to work with the present secretary-general. This may seem to provide a strong reason why I should resign." But Khrushchev proposed to replace him with "an arrangement"—a triumvirate—which would make an effective executive impossible.

By resigning, he said, "I would, therefore, at the present difficult and dangerous juncture, throw the organization to the winds. I have no right to do so . . ."

The applause broke out then, and soon more than a third of the delegates were on their feet, while the embarrassed Mr. Hammarskjold vainly held up both hands to quell the ovation. Khrushchev sat there, pounding both fists on the desk in his latest gesture of disapproval, and the other Red delegates followed suit. Before Mr. Hammarskjold could quiet the hall, these cautious diplomats had given him an unusual minute and a half of applause.

Dag Hammarskjold had little more to say. It was not the Soviet Union nor other big powers which needed the U.N. for their protection, he said, "it is all the others. In this sense, the organization is first of all their organization . . . I shall remain in my post as a servant . . . in the interests of all those other nations, as long as they wish me to do so."

Again the applause rippled through the vast dome.

"The representative of the Soviet Union spoke of courage," Mr. Hammarskjold said quietly. "It is very easy to resign; it is not so easy to stay on. It is very easy to bow to the wish of a big power. It is another matter to resist."

Well, he had resisted before, and "if it is the wish of those nations who see in the organization their best protection in the present world, I shall now do so again."

That was all. Eventually, the Kremlin may get Dag Hammarskjold's scalp—but he was not handing it over on a silver platter.

Assembly Applauds As Hammarskjold Refuses to Resign

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Staff Reporter

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 3—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold today dramatically rejected a demand by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev that he resign his powerful post as the chief executive officer of the world organization.

The usually phlegmatic Swede, his voice close to cracking as he spoke to a hushed and packed afternoon session of the General Assembly with Khrushchev in the audience, said he would serve out the remaining 3 years of his term if the smaller nations who are the big majority here want him to stay on the job.

As Khrushchev pounded the desk in front of him with both fists the bulk of the non-Communist delegates applauded loudly and for some 90 seconds. A quarter to a third of the delegates, including those from the United States, stood as they applauded.

Backed by Majority

Hammarskjold thus won the apparent backing of the bulk of the U. N.'s membership, though there was no rollcall. But the new Hammarskjold clash with Khrushchev, who said he did not and could not trust the Secretary General, made it more likely than ever that henceforth he will be hamstrung in whatever he does and that he has totally lost his past usefulness as a mediator between the giants of East and West.

The feeling here tonight was that Hammarskjold is now likely to face the kind of Soviet boycott enforced on his Norwegian predecessor, Trygve Lie, in the Korean War year, a boycott which eventually led Lie to resign in 1953. This certainly will have the effect of limiting the effectiveness of the U. N. in any future crisis of the Congo type. Quite likely it also will inhibit Hammarskjold in what he does in the Congo from now on. His term ends April 10, 1963.

Hammarskjold listened intently at the morning session with Khrushchev, confining himself to what for him was a perfunctory reading of a prepared text, blasted him for "arbitrariness and lawlessness" in handling the U. N. role in the Congo and with bias toward the Communist nations.

"If he does not muster up enough courage to resign, so to say, in a chivalrous manner," declared Khrushchev, "then we shall draw the necessary conclusions from the obtaining situation."

Prepares Reply

Hammarskjold busily jotted notes on Khrushchev's remarks and later went to his 38th-floor office to write out his reply. All knew it was coming when the Assembly met again half an hour later at 3:30 p. m. After repeating the core of the Soviet charge against him, Hammarskjold indicted Khrushchev's charges and Communist tactics in this paragraph:

"The Assembly had witnessed over the last weeks how historical truth is established: once an allegation has been repeated a few times, it is no longer allegation, it is an established fact, even if no evidence has been brought out in order to support it. However, facts are facts, and the true facts are there for whosoever cares for truth. Those who invoke history will certainly be heard by history. And they will have to accept its verdict as it will be pronounced on the basis of the facts by men free of mind and firm in their conviction that only on a scrutiny of truth can a future of peace be built."

He went on to say that the 98 member nations were his judges, not one alone, and he appealed to these many nations which have become free in the past 15 years to "speak for themselves."

Refused to Yield

As he had said after Khrushchev's first attack on him 10 days ago, Hammarskjold declared that the argument is not over a man but over the U. N. as an institution. He repeated his conviction that "a weak or non-existent executive," such as the Soviet plan for a veto-wielding triumvirate, would mean the U. N. no longer could protect those small nations which depend on it.

"The man holding the responsibility as chief executive should leave if he weakens the executive; he should stay if this is necessary for its maintenance," he went on.

Khrushchev's opposition today, he said, "seems to provide a strong reason why I should resign." But if he did quit, the Soviets would refuse to agree to any single successor, thus destroying the U. N. secretariat machinery, he added.

"By resigning, I would, therefore, at the present difficult and dangerous juncture throw the organization to the winds," said Hammarskjold. And before he could get well into the next sentence there was a great burst of applause and Khrushchev began pounding the table, part of the time smiling.

The same thing happened again when Hammarskjold said "I shall remain in my post during the term of my office . . ."

Hammarskjold, holding up his hand to halt applause, showed the depth of his feeling in his final words.

"It is very easy," he said, "to resign; it is not so easy to stay on. It is very easy to bow to the wish of a big power. It is another matter to resist."

But resist Khrushchev and all the might of the Communist bloc was exactly what the Swedish diplomat did here today. And he said he would continue to resist as long as it is "the wish of those nations who see in the organization their best protection in the present world."

Nehru for Revision

Khrushchev had no immediate comment, but U. S. Delegate James J. Wadsworth complimented Hammarskjold for his "tremendous courage" and said his decision was "a very fine augury for the future." He said the Khrushchev triumvirate plan was ludicrous and showed "a determination to destroy" the U. N.

While Khrushchev hammered at the Secretary General in his speech, Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru gave him considerable but far from total support. Nehru in a morning speech took the pragmatic position that Hammarskjold might well reflect the changing world lineup by some internal U. N. reorganization steps since the big-power veto of both the United States and the Soviet Union would block any moves to amend the Charter in one direction or another.

Khrushchev got to speak under the loosely used "right of reply" to other speakers. He gave an unemotional and reasoned argument that since the U. N. was set up in 1945 the world and the balance of power in it has vastly changed. He complained once again at the exclusion of Red China and Communist Outer Mongolia. He boasted of recent Soviet achievements and argued that the U. N. structure is now "out of date," in part because the neutralist third of the world is underrepresented in the Security Council and the secretariat.

Then he moved to his attack on Hammarskjold, saying he had "always upheld the interests of the United States and other countries of monopoly capital." He cited Hammarskjold's handling of the Congo crisis.

Up to now, said Khrushchev, the West, led by the U. S., has been predominant in the U. N. But today "it does not even dominate under the right of the strong," a rather frank exposition of Communist thinking about power and diplomacy. He said the U. S. and U. S. S. R. today are "at least equal" in power and that this must be reflected in the world organization.

He argued once again for a U. N. executive headed by three men, representatives of the West, the Communist bloc and the neutrals or non-aligned nations. He denied that this would destroy the U. N., as the West has intended. Only with equality, he argued, could disarmament be achieved.

He advised the U. N. not to submit "to the clamorous phrases pronounced here by Mr. Hammarskjold" in the Congo affair. He said that President Eisenhower had defended "what is old, rotten and already collapsing" in the remaining colonial areas of the world. By contrast, he said, the Soviet Union was helping hand to peoples rising against the colonialists for their freedom and independence.

Khrushchev ended with a claim that he was working for peace, that he was like "a sower who works so that man may have a good harvest." Some seeds, he said, fall upon stony grounds and some young sprouts meet with drought. In these words he seemed to be saying that the Soviet Union does not get its way at once, as it obviously is not going to, the time will come when the seeds sown at this stormy session of the U. N. will sprout and grow as the Communists wish them to.

Soviets Pressing Drive

on Dag

By JOSEPH P. LASH

The Russians stepped up their drive today to oust Dag Hammarskjold and immobilize the UN.

With Soviet Premier Khrushchev showing no inclination to go home, some UN observers doubt that he is bluffing in his threat to consider all UN decisions illegal unless it bows to his demands for reorganization.

And they feel that if Khrushchev fails to lead a walk-out of the Soviet bloc, it will only be because the Soviet foreign office recalls the effect of the Russian boycott a decade ago that enabled the Security Council to take effective action in Korea.

Two influential British news papers, the Manchester Guardian and the London Daily Express, predicted today that Khrushchev and his allies could force Hammarskjold out with a determined drive.

The Soviet Premier will stay here to lead the fight. He plans to stay at least another week. He's asked permission to spend next weekend at the Soviet Estate in Glen Cove, L. I.

Some of Hammarskjold's leading supporters, however, are preparing to leave. British Prime Minister Macmillan, who stood up for the Secretary General in his speech to the Assembly, is expected to head home tomorrow.

President Tito of Yugoslavia and Nasser of the United Arab Republic, key figures in the neutralist bloc which has helped sustain Hammarskjold over Soviet objections to the UN performance in the Congo, are leaving today.

Wants to See Macmillan

Khrushchev has indicated that he would like to return a visit by Macmillan last week before the Prime Minister goes home. Because of Macmillan's tight schedule today, Khrushchev's call could not be arranged immediately, but it was considered likely that it would take place late today.

After visiting Khrushchev this morning at Russia's Park Av. headquarters, Moulay Hassan, Crown Prince of Morocco, said that he and the Soviet chief "are in agreement on the liberation of Algeria and the liberation of all colonial peoples."

Bag Vows to Stay On

Hammarskjold declared yesterday that despite the Soviet withdrawal of confidence he will remain at his post at least until 1963 when his term of office expires, if the middle and smaller powers wish him to do so.

Judging by the ovation given him, the Soviet bloc at present stands isolated on the issue.

No one pretends to know what is driving Khrushchev on. Some diplomats say it is fury at being thwarted in the Congo. Others believe his shock tactics are designed to dramatize the new power balance in the world. Some say it is competition with the West for the allegiance of the newly emerging states; others suspect it is competition with Peking.

No Rush to Summit

Still another view has it that he is seeking to shoulder the issue of UN reorganization onto the agenda of the next summit conference.

So far as the summit is concerned, he indicated again last night that he is not in a hurry.

In identical letters to the five top neutralist leaders who have been urging an Eisenhower-Khrushchev meeting, he wrote he was ready to resume contacts with the U. S. if it found the courage to condemn the "aggressive acts" involved in the U-2 and RB-47 affairs. Khrushchev's reply also seemed to rule out a meeting between his foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, and Secretary of State Herter. President Eisenhower while rejecting a top-level meeting said Herter was available if the Soviet Union wanted to discuss concrete measures for reducing tensions.

Postpone Action

The Assembly put over until tomorrow discussion of the neutralist resolution urging a resumption of U. S.-Soviet contacts. An Australian amendment would broaden this into a four-power affair, as the Paris summit was supposed to be. As for time, the Australians would have the Assembly urge such a meeting at "the earliest practicable date."

Ambassador U. Thant of Burma conceded chances of solving the representation issue appeared to be "as remote as ever" but this should not prevent members from trying to get the issue discussed. By not admitting Peking, the UN was damaging itself rather than the Peoples Republic of China. He appealed to members to review their positions "dispassionately" for without Peking's participation "burning questions of the day like disarmament will not be solved realistically."

The Security Council will meet Friday to consider Nigeria's application for UN membership. The Assembly is expected to give final approval to the application Friday afternoon and make Nigeria the 99th member.

PRESS IN MOSCOW REVILES U.N. HEAD

Attacks on Hammarskjold Widened and His Choice of Western Aides Assailed

By OSGOOD CABUTHERS

Special to The New York Times

MOSCOW, Oct. 8.—The Soviet press expanded its charges against Dag Hammarskjold today and extended its bitter attacks to his Western aides in the United Nations Secretariat.

Moscow's official newspapers and the Soviet press agency Tass accused Mr. Hammarskjold with blistering scorn of having repeatedly violated the United Nations Charter. They said he had illegally sought to expand his powers and had acted in the interests of the United States and its Western allies on all important world questions during the last five years.

Commentaries by special correspondents of the Government newspaper Izvestia, the Communist youth paper Komsomolskaya Pravda, and the Russian Republic's newspaper, Sovetskaya Rossiya, as well as Tass, portrayed the Secretary General as a hereditary friend of Western big business.

"It is not for nothing that the United States in 1953 proposed to appoint Hammarskjold as Secretary General of the United Nations," said L. Kuznetsov, New York correspondent of Komsomoiskaya Pravda.

There was no mention of the fact that Mr. Hammarskjold was proposed only after it had been ascertained that he would receive the approval of the Soviet Union in the Security Council as successor of the first Secretary General, Trygve Lie. Mr. Hammarskjold was appointed after the Soviet Union refused to further cooperation with Mr. Lie.

Discrimination Alleged

The consensus of the Soviet writers was that Mr. Hammarskjold not only had acted in the interests of the West against the Soviet Union but also had padded the Secretariat with Americans and other Western representatives, thereby discriminating against the Eastern bloc and Africans.

All this was plainly intended to support Premier Khrushchev's demand in New York that Mr. Hammarskjold resign. Mr. Khrushchev has proposed that the Secretary General be replaced by a three-man committee consisting of representatives of the East, the West and neutral nations.

"Two-thirds of the officials in numerous offices of the United Nations palace are citizens of the United States and their partners in military blocs," Izvestia said. "They take in a rich harvest of salaries, roam around the world with fat traveling allowances in their pockets and are engaged, to put it bluntly, not in political business alone."

The newspaper charged that a special mission sent by Mr. Hammarskjold to investigate the need for aid in Laos had spent $260,000 on good living there and then had recommended that assistance amounting to $213,000 be granted to that country.

Decision on Guinea Scored

A Dutch representative sent by Mr. Hammarskjold to Guinea was accused by the paper of receiving $40,000 for his work and reporting that Guinea needed financial aid.

Izvestia also complained that the special representative appointed by the United Nations to investigate the "nonexistent Hungarian question," Sir Leslie Munro, received a salary of $12,000 last year and expected to get $13,000 this year for doing "nothing but slander the Hungarian People's Republics."

"The slanderer resides in New York, rides about in official cars, is engaged in shady financial dealings among other things, slings mud at the Hungarian people at every convenient opportunity and pockets considerable sums as remuneration," the Izvestia report said.

It complained further that the United Nations Commission for Unification and Restoration of Korea had spent $2,500,000 in ten years and had only done its best "to deepen the split in Korea."

The chief burden of blame, however, was directed at Mr. Hammarskjold. He was accused of having tried "illegally to enlarge his power," or having "displayed frantic activity in implementation of illegal resolutions directed against the Hungarian Peoples Republic and the U. S. S. R." or having acted for the West in the crisis in Lebanon and Jordan in 1958 and of winding up with a "distressing role" in the Congo.

Finally, the newspaper said, he has failed to "show chivalry by resigning from his post" at Mr. Khrushchev's demand.

HammarSKjold's Reply To Demand He Resign

UNITED NATIONS, Oct. 3
(AP)—The text of U.N.
Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold's statement to the General Assembly today:

The head of the Soviet delegation to the General Assembly this morning, in exercising his right of reply, said among many other things that the present Secretary General has always been biased against the Socialist countries, that he has used the United Nations in support of the colonial powers, fighting the Congolese government and Parliament in order to impose "a new yoke on the Congo," and finally that if I, myself, and I quote, "do not muster up enough courage to resign, so to say, in a chival-rous manner, then the Soviet Union will draw the necessary conclusions from the obtained situation."

In support of this challenge, the representative of the Soviet Union said that it is not proper for a man who has "flouted elementary justice to hold such an important post as that of the Secretary General." And later on he found reason to say to the delegates of this session that they should not "submit to the glamorous phrases pronounced here" by me "in attempts to justify the bloody crime perpetrated against the Congolese people."

The General Assembly can rightly expect an immediate reply from my side to a statement so directly addressed to me and regarding the matter of such potential significance.
The Assembly has witnessed over the last weeks how historical truth is established once an allegation has been repeated a few times, it is no longer an allegation, it is an established fact, even if "no evidence has been brought out in order to support it."

However, facts are facts, and the true facts are there,
for whosoever cares for truth.
Those who invoke history will certainly be heard by history.
And they will have to accept its verdict as it will be pronounced on the basis of the facts by men free of mind and firm in their conviction that only on a scrutiny of truth can a future of peace be built.

I have no reason to defend myself or my colleagues against the accusations in judgment to which you have listened. Let me say only this, that YOU, all of you are the judges. No single party can claim that authority. I am sure you will be guided by truth and justice.

In particular, let those who know what the United Nations has done and is doing in the Congo and those who are not pursuing aims proper only to themselves pass judgment on our actions there. Let the countries who have liberated themselves in the last 15 years speak for themselves.

I regret that the intervention to which I have found it necessary to reply has again ended to personalize an issue which, as I have said, in my view is not a question of a man but of an institution. The man does not count, the institution does.

A weak or nonexistent executive would mean that the United Nations would no longer be able to serve as an effective instrument for active protection of the interests of those many members who need such protection. The man holding the responsibility as chief executive should leave if he weakens the executive; he should stay if this is necessary for its maintenance. This, and only this, seems to me to be the substantive criterion that has to be applied.

By resigning, I would therefore, at the present difficult and dangerous juncture, throw the organization to the winds. I have no right to do so because I have a responsibility to all those states members for which the organization is of decisive importance, a responsibility which overrides all other considerations.

It is not the Soviet Union, or indeed, any other big powers who need the United Nations for their protection; it is all the others. In this sense the organization is first of all THEIR organization, and I deeply believe in the wisdom with which they will be able to use it and guide it.

I shall remain in my post during the term of my office as a servant of the organization in the interests of all those other nations, as long as THEY wish me to do so.

In this context the representative of the Soviet Union spoke of courage. It is very easy to resign; it is not so easy to stay on. It is very easy to bow to the wish of a big power. It is another matter to resist.

As is well known to all members of this Assembly, I have done so before on many occasions and in many directions. If it is the wish of those nations who see in the organization their best protection in the present world, I shall do so again.

I said the other day that I would not wish to continue to serve as Secretary General one day longer than such continued service was, and was considered to be, in the best interests of the organization. The statement this morning seems to indicate that the Soviet Union finds it impossible to work with the present Secretary General.

This may seem to provide a

Russians Set to Step Up Assault on U. N. Chief

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 30 (AP).—The Soviet Union whetted its ax today for a full-scale assault on Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold and his role in the Congo. The Russians made clear they will try to make Mr. Hammarskjold the scapegoat for the U. N.'s financial plight, as debate on the cost of the U. N. Congo operation went into its second day before the Budgetary Committee.

The Soviet Union has called for an end to the vast operation in the Congo, declaring that Mr. Hammarskjold has brought the United Nations to the brink of bankruptcy in order to pay for it.

The Communist-bloc nations argue that the United States and its Western allies put the Congo in its present state of chaos. The Communists flatly refuse to pay any part of the $66 million needed to carry on the U. N. operation through this year.

Mr. Hammarskjold has warned that the whole Congo operation might have to be scrapped unless the General Assembly gets the member states to foot the bill quickly.

The United States announced it will help tide the U. N. through by contributing $14 million more than its normal share of the Congo cost. It appeals to other U. N. members to shoulder their share of the burden.

The Russians insist that the payments are not mandatory because the cost of the operation is not included in the regular U. N. budget.

They have been trying to abolish the Congo force on grounds it was illegal from the start and that Mr. Hammarskjold was acting as an agent for the Western powers. They insist that he take steps at once to put a stop to "unconstitutional Congo expenses."

The Russians have little chance of blocking Mr. Hammarskjold's proposal that the Congo operation be made part of the regular budget. But the tack they have been taking may serve as the base for their expected assault on the Secretary General when the entire Congo question comes before the General Assembly.

They have attempted to depict him as a tool of the Belgians and the United States and have charged that he acted as a Western agent in the Congo crisis without consulting the rest of the U. N. members.

The Russians have been trying to build up a case against Mr. Hammarskjold ever since Premier Khrushchev demanded that his post be abolished and a three-man board elected in his place. So far the campaign against Mr. Hammarskjold has won little support even from the Asian-African neutrals, on whom the Communists had counted.

At 5:45 p.m., 2-19-61, Special Agent [REDACTED] New York Office (NYO), called to report receipt of anonymous telephone call to NYO concerning a plan to kill United Nations (UN) Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. b7c

At 5:04 p.m., 2-19-61, NYO Complaint Clerk [REDACTED] received the call. The caller, a male who talked rather fast and had what might be described as a Negro accent, said: "Keep a close watch on Dag Hammarskjold. He has been sentenced to death in a secret meeting of a secret organization." The caller was pressed for further details, particularly his identity and that of the organization. He declined to give any more data except to repeat that it is a "secret" organization. According to NYO, the caller may have said "Negro meeting" rather than "secret meeting" but it was understood by the NYO employee to be "secret meeting."

NYO reported the call immediately to the New York City Police Department and the UN Security Office and shortly thereafter received a call from Don Thomas, an aide to Hammarskjold. Thomas wanted to verify the fact NYO had received the anonymous call. Thomas was assured we had and that we would be alert for any further pertinent information. b7c

At 6 p.m., writer furnished above data to [REDACTED] of State Department Security Office.

Nationalities Intelligence Section, which is following captioned matter, has been advised and will confirm data given State. NYO is sending airtel confirming information furnished telephonically. 3-1 3-18 1961 5-11-3 1961 3-105 2-20-0

To advise of State Department's proposal for working-level conference State, CIA and FBI to anticipate and resolve problems and plan for 16th Session, United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) scheduled to begin 9-19-61 in New York. To recommend we participate in such conference and that ASAC Schmit, New York Office, or another Supervisor represent FBI. Airtel to New York attached.

(S) 5
State has proposed a working-level conference, State communication 8-25-61 attached. No date for same has been set. It is felt we should participate and cooperate in such conference restricting our participation to our interests and jurisdiction and we should not become involved in physical protection of any diplomats. Believed ASAC Schmit or another supervisor, New York Office, and SA [REDACTED] New York Office, who handled working-level liaison in 1960, or another agent familiar with those arrangements represent FBI. b7C

Over past weekend it was announced that President Kennedy may address the UNGA. It is suggested that this will attract top leaders from Soviet-bloc countries but no official information has as yet been received as to identities of top Soviet personnel who may come to the UNGA. Director of the FBI
Washington Building
Washington 5, D.C.

Honorable J. Edgar Hoover:

listed below are several questions that I would like to have answers to?

Any personal comment that you might have dealing with any of the questions would be appreciated?

Are the communists responsible for Dag Hammarskjold's death?

Is there any evidence that might prove, or throw a strong suspicion on the Reds?

Have there been any previous attempts on Dag's life?

Can you give me a list of sound concrete reasons why the communists would want Dag out of the way?

I thank you for your time and trouble.

Sincerely yours

Dear [REDACTED]

Your letter dated September 21, 1961, has been received, and the interest prompting you to communicate with me is appreciated.

In response to your inquiries concerning the death of Dag Hammarskjold, I would like to point out that representation of the United States in the United Nations is a function of another Government agency. Consequently, I cannot be of assistance to you on this occasion. I am referring a copy of your letter to The Honorable, The Secretary of State, Washington 25, D. C., for whatever assistance he might be able to afford you.

Sincerely yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

John Edgar Hoover
Director

Memorandum

TO : MR. SULLIVAN
FROM : D. J. BRENNAN

DATE: January 18, 1962

FROM : ~~SECRET~~ SUBJECT: REQUEST FOR RECOMMENDATION OF FORMER SPECIAL AGENT
TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF DAG HAMMARSKJOLD

On 1-17-62 [REDACTED] Office of International Administration, U. S. Department of State, advised the Bureau Liaison that the United Nations is sending a group to Northern Rhodesia in about a week to 10 days to investigate the death of former United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, who was killed in an air crash there on 9-18-61. [REDACTED] would like the Bureau, if possible, to recommend a former Bureau Agent who has had extensive criminal investigative experience.
[REDACTED] said that a technical knowledge of aircraft is not necessary as the Civil Aeronautics Board has recommended an individual to make the examination of the wreckage of the plane.
[REDACTED] in the event the Bureau is unable to

[REDACTED] said that in the event the Bureau is unable to recommend anyone he plans to contact the Society of Former Special Agents and possibly the International Association of Chiefs of Police. [REDACTED] stated the assignment will be for approximately one month and the people participating will be hired by the United Nations under a special services agreement.

ACTION:

ACTION: Refer to Administrative Division for comments as to recommending a former Bureau Agent. REC 12 105-22666
